HERSHEY THEATRE Apollo AWARDS

Hershey Theatre Apollo Awards Recipient Auditions for NICKELODEON

When Alec Brashear from Lower Dauphin High School stepped into the spotlight at the Hershey Theatre Apollo Awards program last May, he couldn't have imagined how his life was about to take a few exciting turns.

Alec was awarded the "Outstanding Male Lead in a Musical," and therefore earned a spot in the National High School Musical Awards show in New York City. Last June, students from across the country rehearsed for five strenuous but exhilarating days to prepare for their live performance at the Jack H. Skirball Center for the Performing Arts at New York University.

Fate also played a part that evening when staff from the Nickelodeon channel attended the show in search of their next network star. Alec's rendition of "Hey There" from The Pajama Game caught the attention of the Nickelodeon casting staff. He, along with 14 other teens from regional programs similar to the Hershey Theatre Apollo Awards, was contacted shortly after the program and received an offer to audition for a new pilot television show. On July 14, Alec entered the Viacom building in Manhattan and, amid lime green walls and SpongeBob SquarePants murals, he sang his heart out.

Alec hasn't heard whether he's landed anything with the network, but he's grateful for the opportunity the Hershey Theatre Apollo Awards gave him - and the experience of a lifetime. Good luck Alec!

Coming to Hershey Gardens Next Summer: For the Birds – A Birdhouse Exhibit

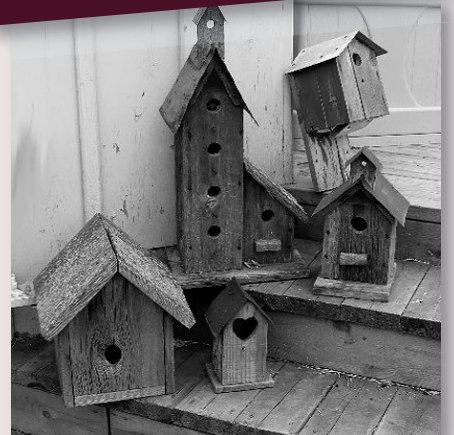

Whether you're the creative type or a bird enthusiast, now's the time to start imagining your birdhouse in the Gardens' upcoming summer exhibit "For the Birds." This fun and educational display will feature an eclectic array of birdhouses – whimsical, functional and "green" – that will delight and educate visitors.

The exhibit will feature winners in four categories and age divisions – youth, junior, adult and business/association – as well as "Best of Show" and "People's Choice" awards. All entries are accepted, so show off your skills and enter your creation. Birdhouses will be due in late March.

Details to follow at HersheyGardens.org.

Treasure Discovered in Museum Collection

When The Hershey Story staff moved 25,000 historic artifacts from storage at Hershey Museum into the new Hershey Story, many were curious about a handsome manual cash register. The unassuming piece sat on a shelf for many years, too heavy to examine closely. Moving the collection proved to be the impetus to take a closer look at this appealing artifact.

So began the search for more information about the mysterious cash register. The manufacturer was easily identifiable as "NATIONAL." The National Cash Register Company of Dayton, Ohio was a popular maker of cash registers. The serial number and model number were also easily seen on a label below the glass case. Company records located via the Internet determined the date of manufacture to be 1907. While researching related websites, more information was revealed: cash registers often had a label on the underside of the drawer with additional source information. Traditionally, as care takers of historic artifacts, staff do not operate antique machines, in order to preserve them. However, an exception was made in this case.

Sure enough, there was a label on the underside of the empty drawer. Curators were thrilled to see the register was made for "M. Hershey of Hershey Sta, Pa." on September 30, 1907.

One question answered, but many remain. Why did Mr. Hershey order the machine and where was it used? How did it find its way to the museum? Preliminary research has not provided any clues, but the search will continue.

ART inspiration

Through November 8, 2009

Milton Hershey's life was one of inspiration. His persistence in the face of failure, his determination to succeed and the creativity he employed now serve as inspirations to others. Twenty-one local artists answered the question "what inspires you?". Artworks range from painting and photography to sculpture and jewelry. Admission to the exhibit is free.

1968 In America

June 16, 2010 – October 20, 2010

Martin Luther King, Jr. assassinated, riots at the Democratic National Convention, growing protests over the Vietnam War. These events and others made 1968 the most turbulent year since World War II. These pivotal events and others will be explored through four themes: the Power of Idealism, the Power of Music, the Power of the Bullet and the Power of the Press. The 1960s were also a period of great change in Hershey. Hinkle's Twinkles, the creation of the Milton S. Hershey Medical Center and admittance of minority male students at Milton Hershey School are some of the events that will be explored against the national backdrop.

1968 In America is a Program of ExhibitsUSA, a national division of Mid-America Arts Alliance and The National Endowment for the Arts.

Chocolate Lab.....on wheels!

The Chocolate Lab Cart is a Guest Favorite

The Chocolate Lab is a busy place, often full of visitors eager to learn about chocolate and explore its origins. Although the Lab may have capacity limits, the mobile Chocolate Lab cart doesn't! The cart, staffed by knowledgeable volunteers, is usually located in the Grand Lobby on busy days. Here, visitors discover chocolate's unique ingredients as well as enjoy the aroma of roasted nibs and vanillin (vanilla bean extract). Guests can also feel the texture of real cocoa pods and discover the differences among cocoa beans from around the world.

The cart is perfect for visitors who have questions about chocolate or its origins. "Does white chocolate come from white beans?" is a common question. Volunteers enjoy meeting guests who have their own chocolate experiences to share. "I met a family from Mexico," relates volunteer Tony Panettieri, "who described how sweet the pulp that surrounds the beans tastes when the pods are first harvested."

Due to the popularity of the cart, the museum is always seeking new volunteers. For more information about hours and training, please contact Lois Miklas at 717.520.5587.

New! "I Spy" at The Hershey Story

The Museum Experience is featuring a new interactive guide for even the youngest detectives. The "I Spy" booklet provides visual clues for preschoolers and their families to search their way through the exhibits. A simple rhyme and detailed pictures challenge children to find objects that tell the story of Milton Hershey and his life's work.

"I Spy" booklets are available at the admissions desk and are included with museum admission.

*"I spy with my little eye...
 A wheel down low, A lamp that glows,
 Elves with Kiss hats playing in the snow."*

Congratulations to the 2009 History Contest Winners

The History Contest for Young Writers has found a new home at The Hershey Story. This program, which encourages youth to find their own stories in history, is a perfect match for the mission of the new museum. This year, a record 363 entries were received from students in seven counties. Winning entries were written on such wide-ranging topics as Feruccio Lamborghini, the atomic bomb and the history of chocolate. To read winning essays and requirements for next year's contest, please visit HersheyStory.org.

HERSHEY GARDENS' RICH HISTORY

Through the Eyes of Volunteer Leone Gerberich

Although Leone Gerberich retired from Hershey Gardens in 1995 after more than 40 years, he continues to volunteer. His vast knowledge of history and horticulture has been a great asset to the Gardens.

Gerberich began his "dream job" as a gardener in 1953 at the former Hershey Rose Garden. Although he was only 24, he was no novice to roses. His childhood interest in gardening had been nurtured by his grandmother and great-grandmother. By his early teens, he had developed a passion and flair for growing roses.

Harry Erdman, who designed and developed the original Rose Garden, was still overseeing the Gardens when Gerberich began. "I learned a lot about gardening and roses from Mr. Erdman," Gerberich said, "and I continued to learn through my own observations, study and course work."

As time passed, Gerberich gained an award-winning reputation as an outstanding rosarian, including induction into the International Order of the Gold Rose, one of the most prestigious honors in the rose world. Before retiring, he introduced Jamie Shiffer, the current grounds manager, to the art and science of rose culture, thus assuring that Hershey Gardens' tradition of impeccable roses will continue.

Leone Gerberich

In 1972, during Hurricane Agnes, Gerberich braved the flooding roads to get to the Gardens from his home in Jonestown. He arrived just in time to open the valve of the pond so it didn't overflow and destroy the rose beds below it.

Milton Hershey and Harry Erdman, the first Gardens director, during construction, summer 1936.

“If Mr. Hershey came to the Gardens and saw a few weeds, instead of reprimanding Erdman, he would say, ‘I’ll hire you another man,’ and he would do it.”

Hershey Gardens' Winter Youth Programs Hit the Road

Freezing temperatures and snowfall can't stop the Gardens from teaching children about butterflies and bringing out their inner green thumbs. This winter, the education department will be traveling to local schools, preschools and libraries to help children discover the wonderful world of nature.

"These interactive programs are great because they introduce young students to the wonders of nature," said Amy Cober, education coordinator. "Plus, they love being active participants."

If you'd like more information on how to bring Hershey Gardens to your school or library, please call 717.508.5968 or email education@hersheygardens.org for more information.

There's A Lot "Growing on" at Hershey Gardens

Bonsai: Living Art of the Central Pennsylvania Bonsai Clubs

October 9 to December 27

Featuring dozens of bonsai trees of various shapes and sizes, this popular exhibit provides information on bonsai, what they are and how they are grown.

Bonsai, developed by the Japanese more than a thousand years ago, is derived from the Chinese practice of growing miniature plants. In bonsai cultivation, woody plants are kept small and in true proportion to their natural models by growing them in small containers, feeding and watering them only enough for healthy growth, pruning and training branches in the desired shape by the application of wire coils. The term bonsai also refers to the plants dwarfed by this method.

The Gardens' outdoor Butterfly House will house the exhibition.

National Christmas Tree Walk

November 13 through December 27 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Hershey Gardens is often host to visitors from across the U.S. As the holidays approach, the Gardens will be celebrating its visitors with the National Christmas Tree Walk.

Now in its third year, the walk will feature trees decorated with ornaments from all 50 states and the District of Columbia.

Have an ornament from another state you'd like to donate? We'd love to have it! Please bring your like-new ornament to the Gift Shop before November 1.

Holiday Greens Sale

Friday, December 4 through Sunday, December 6 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

The Gift Shop will feature special holiday items, as well as the popular garden greenery sale that only Hershey Gardens can offer. Choose from beautiful wreaths, table decorations and other decorative pieces made from many varieties of conifers and other unique greens.

Boo! Halloween at Hershey Gardens will be a Haunting Good Time

Whether it's fun or fright you're looking for, Hershey Gardens will feature both this Halloween.

Pumpkin Glow

Friday, October 16 from 6 p.m. to 9 p.m.

Bring your flashlight and enjoy spooky illuminated pumpkins along the garden path. The Gardens will have trick or treating for the children with candy treats generously donated by The Hershey Company. Admissions purchased after 6 p.m. on Friday, October 16 are also valid for entry on Saturday, October 17 for the Jack o' Lantern Jamboree.

Harper Lee's TO KILL A MOCKINGBIRD

Still Opening Doors – and Opening Eyes

“Courage is not a man with a gun. Courage is when you know you're licked before you begin, but you begin anyway and you see it through no matter what.”

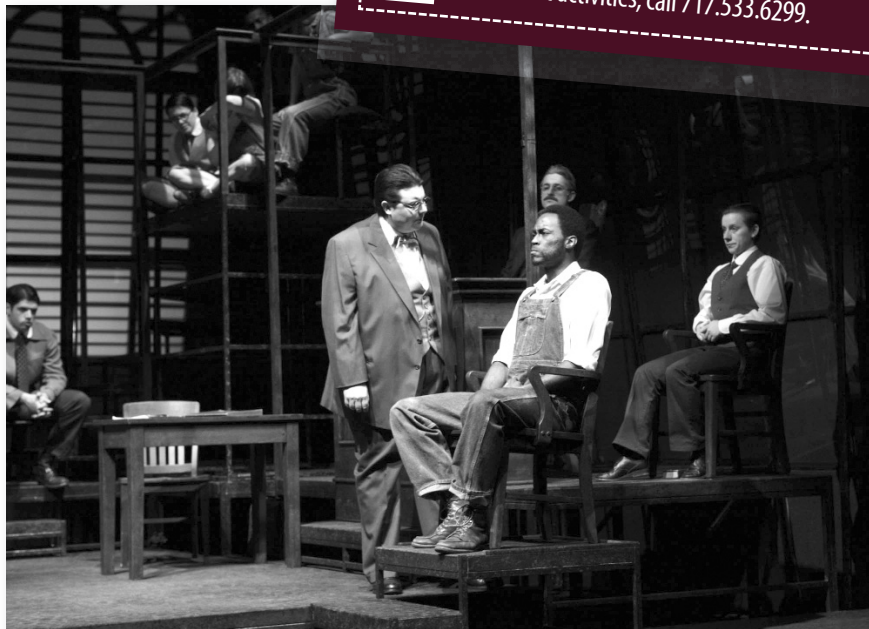

Winner of the 1960 Pulitzer Prize for fiction, Harper Lee's novel To Kill A Mockingbird is a much-loved American classic. The tale of a family coming face-to-face with the question of justice in the South, as told through a young girl's eyes, is simple, yet eloquent, and ultimately compelling. In fact, most high schools – and many law schools – have this book on their “required reading” list.

This tale will be brought to life for two performances by the Montana Repertory Theatre. On Wednesday, November 18 at 8 p.m., the full drama will unfold on Hershey Theatre's stage and is open to the public. Just prior to the performance, in the lower lobby, the Dauphin County Bar Association will have a presentation on the legal aspects of the play, open for lawyers seeking continuing education credits.

On Thursday, November 19 at 11 a.m., a shortened one-hour school version of the play will be presented. This educational enrichment activity is open to all students and their chaperones for $10 each. In addition to the on-stage presentation, free study guides are available for download at HersheyTheatre.com.

The Montana Repertory Theatre was established as a professional touring company in 1968, and is one of the oldest and most respected touring companies in the United States. Their mission is to tell the great stories of the world to enlighten, develop and celebrate the human spirit in an ever-expanding community. Their artistic director, Greg Johnson, is very passionate about this play.

“With To Kill a Mockingbird, we return to a story we first encountered with joy over a decade ago,” Johnson said. “We are delighted to reexamine this timeless tale in a new century, for a new generation of theatergoers.”

In advance of the Hershey Theatre performances, the Hershey Public Library will have a free presentation, “Where To Kill A Mockingbird Meets Harry Potter: Growing Up Well in a World of Rules” sponsored by the Friends of the Hershey Public Library on November 9 at 7 p.m. Mr. Randy Lee, a professor of law with the Widener University School of Law, will lead the discussion. Mr. Lee's expertise and unique comparison between Scout Finch and Harry Potter will create an enjoyable evening. To learn more, call the Hershey Public Library circulation desk at 533.6555.

Opening a Window on Hershey's Past HersheyArchives.org now features The Hershey Press

Milton Hershey had a keen ability to envision the future. Before the Hershey community was much more than a crossroads, Mr. Hershey created services and amenities that usually would only be found in much larger, well-established communities. One of these amenities was a newspaper.

On September 3, 1909, the first issue of The Hershey Press, a weekly paper, was printed. Published through 1926, with a brief interruption in 1917 during World War I, The Hershey Press promoted the community, encouraged readers to support causes and new ventures and documented the events of the community and its residents. Today, the newspaper is a valuable resource to those interested in the history of the community. It provides a window into the community's past, written with the clarity and bias of the moment, unfiltered by reflection or modern perspectives.

Milton Hershey School Historical Records department holds the only complete run of the newspaper. A number of years ago the newspaper was microfilmed and copies of the microfilm were shared with Hershey Community Archives and other local historical organizations. Access required a visit to one of these organizations and the use of a microfilm reader.

Earlier this year, the Archives arranged to have the microfilm digitized and indexed. Now

The Hershey Press is available to everyone via the Archives' website. Unlike the scrolling and extensive scanning required to search the microfilm, the online digital version permits users to search by keywords and specific dates.

Please visit HersheyArchives.org and search The Hershey Press to learn more about this important resource.
